

Street Photography

This workshop is ideal if you want to explore street photography in any form, get inspired, learn appropriate techniques and spend time in London shooting and practicing these new found skills.

To maximize shooting time on the day, we will send you on an on demand video which covers the technical learning for you to watch before the day.

On the day you will need any camera from iPhone to DSLR (I will discuss gear in the video portion of the workshop)

You will have the opportunity to shoot and put you new found skills into practice.

Why will this make me a better photographer?

This is a full days workshop that consists of a several hours on demand video learning delivered before the day and a day on location shooting and practicing new found skills

Key Learning points:

- Inspiration - Gear and gear simplification
- Settings and Zone Focusing
- Seeing and exploring opportunity
- Perspectives, getting in close and shooting themes
- Shooting Candidly - How to approach people on the street

There will be several hours here you will be able to shoot various lighting setups and even bring your own products or object to shoot.

Where to meet

10am at the White Goat Statue, Brushfield Street which is outside Spitalfields Market, the nearest Tube is Liverpool Street which is a 6 minute walk.

What's included?

On demand video learning to be watched before the on location day + a day on location in London with the tutor shooting and practicing new found skills.

Simon Ellingworth was a finalist in the 'International iPhone Photography Awards', 'Mobile Photography Awards' & 'Professional Photographer of the Year', previously runner up in 'Professional Photographer of the Year' and 'Sony World Photography Awards'. Simon's tutorials have been published by a number of blogs including Lifehacker, DIY Photography.net, Life in Lofi, SLR Lounge, etc.